“ All of you are in our thoughts and prayers. I know it is alot to go thought, I wish I could take some of the pain for you, someways I do, going thought some losses in my on life pains. But I don't about the loss of a child. My daddy & mommy said that is one of the hardest losses.

There is one saying that grandma McCaskill would always say to me,the Lord only puts on you, what you can handle. If I didn't have her as a great back bone in my life, my life trails would have been alot harder to handle. Ya'll are in prayers always.

“ May you find courage to face tomorrow in the love that surrounds you today. At this time of sorrow may these truths sustain you...your son will always be close as a memory and the God of all comfort is always as close as a prayer. It will be the little things that you will remember, the quiet moments, the smiles, and the laughter. And although it may seem hard right now, it will be the memory of these little things that help push away the pain and bring the smiles back again. " All of those sleeping in their graves will wake up and sing for joy. As the sparkling dew refreshes the earth, so the Lord will revive those who have fallen asleep-Isaiah 26:19, John 5:28,29. “ Aunt Sue, Jessie, Uncle Robert Rusty and Robbie...I'm sorry things have turned out this way for your family. I have no idea of God's plan and how it works in your life. One thing I'm leaning on to give hope is that God is always in control and he holds something glorious in his hands. When he reaches his hand down and shines light it will be perfect.... God said that his strength will be made perfect in our weakness... I'm praying for you. And I love you all. I haven't known a lot about Jason but just seeing him, he put off such a glow and presence. The time I spoke with him and Lawrence when we were preparing to say our Goodbyes to Crystal,.... They both touched my heart and have crossed my mind many times. I wish healing to everyone. He will be missed. Lean to God... he holds the universe in his hands. God bless you and my thoughts are with you.

“ Oh Butch, my heart is just broken for you and your family's loss. I know how much you love your grandson, son and family. I know that there are no words known to man to ease any portion of your pain. The loss of a child/grandchild is something totally out of time. Having lost Caroline, all I can tell you and your son is what I have come to realize, although at times when I visit her tomb, to this very day, I often feel that it is all still a horrible nightmare, which must be some of what you are beginning to experiencing now or in the days ahead. My peace and comfort...such as it is today...comes only through God's gift of his son, Jesus, the Cross and the Resurrection. God's love, grace and peace is available 24/7 to all of us and if you can find your way to leaning on him, we are all promised the "gift" of eternity with him. I cannot begin to even imagine the depth of your pain. Little Jason is in the arms of our creator and even though we are not engineered to comprehend why or reason, there is and must be, as God "knew us even before we were in our mother's womb". Jason is an angel "for real" now, as Little Ben and Glenn tell people about their Cissy when they are asked how old she is now or about her. I will carry you each close to my heart in thought and pray, especially today and in the days to come and I will be here whenever you need to talk or anything. Try to remember that grief is a journey, something you come to terms with through time. I could not have endured without God's love and the love or family and friends like you and your family. Hold fast to your memories as they will bring comfort, and as hard as it is to believe - joy and peace in the years ahead.
