“Robbie, I remember the first time we met; your mother's Sholl family, up north, finally connected after so many years of separation. Your mom and I met you at Ruby Tuesday's, you would only have an iced tea that day. As your mother's life was shortened, for her loved ones must have thought unfair, including me; now here I am too soon to wonder again, why? I was blessed to have met your mother and know the love she had for family, especially her children and grandchildren, whom she was so proud. I feel just as blessed the day I met you. I know His promise and I know we will all meet again.

“ I just met Robert at easterling's landing when he moved down there about three weeks ago. I lived in front of him and the day after he moved in, he asked me to familiarize him with the place he was staying as I had just moved out of his place to another.the short three weeks I knew him I found him to be....real, laid back, and taking life as it came.i didn't know him as you guys do,but,thats how I seen him. he was a good person and im glad to have met him.

Crystal, I did not know Robbie but God has his reason for taking our love ones when we don't understand why just know Your family and God has you in their hearts and he will always be looking over you forever and when you see the red bird then you will know he has come to check on you and the children just to make sure you and them are doing ok. May God wrap his arms around you and them during this time of need so sorry cousin. Rest easy Big Guy for now you have your golden wings to fly high with the other angels in heaven...
